When quite cold remove the cloth and it unde the fastenings. Glaze and ornament the head. You can make a very easy glaze a possible of the possible of the case may be, of gelatine to soak in three-guarters or half a pint of cold water for an hour, add either a cupful of strong gravy from roast beef, or one or two spoonsful of Liabig's extract dissolved in a little water, add a pinch or two of salt, and put all into a saucepan, stirring it without stopping till it is as thick as cream; put this into a, and it is ready for use at any time by placing the jar is hot water until the glaze becomes liquid, then brush it over the meat. When glazed replace the tusks in the head, and add eyes made of white of egg and bestroot, serve with folded napkin laid under the head on the dish; bunnhes of parsley and sliced lemon can be laid round. A lemon or an orange is often mounted on the point of oach tusk, but this and the further decorations of the head I must be leave to your own fancy.

I must, however, give you the best of sauces to go with boar's head. Cut the rind from two oranges and slice them. Rubt we or three lumps of sucar on the peel of two smore oranges to get out the flavouring, put the sugar into a basin with six or seven table-spoonfuls of red current jelly, a little white pepper, one shalot, one spoonful of mixed mustard, and enough port wine to make the sauce as thick as good cream, add the orange rind slices, which should be cut very thin. This sauce may be bettled for useg and is an exce lent one to use with almost any kind of cold meat.

THE PRINCE AND THE SNAKE.

Mail news from India gives details of the marrow escape from death of the ruler of the State of Morvion the 18th uit. It is said that his highness was at his stables on the evening of that day and found his grows searching for a snake that had been seen half an hour before. The pursuit was, hour before he ever, given up, and the prince drove out as usual. On the way he suddenly felt a warm to overcoat, and as he unbuttoned it a black venomous cobra fell in a heavy coil to the ground and glided away. His highness drove back at once to the palace and distributed as sum of Rs.500 amont the poor, and gave feasts the following morning. The public offices were closed, and congratulatory visits paid to the prince.

Efforts are being made to form a London Trades Council Labour Representation Leacue. The objects as set forth by the promoters, appear at first sight to be more comprehensive than practical, but a large number of representatives of various trades have promised support to the movement. The appointment of labour representatives in Parliament, and on all local government bodies, is one of the principal plants in the platform, the league to consist of an unlimited number of members, without regard to ser. The league also combines with its political and social objects the advocacy of an eight hours' day. It may, however, be mentioned that while certain agitators are "booming" the movement, the working classes as a body seem, according to some of their class organs, to lack appreciation of the efforts made on their behalf and fail to supply the funds necessary to keep the agitation going. In fact, one of these organs already threatens to "throw up the sponge."

FIRE AT SHOOLBRED'S.
About 10 o'clock on Tuesday night an outbreak of fire occurred in Messrs.
Shoolbred's cabinet manufactory at the back of the Tottenham Court-road. d Shoolbred's cabinst manufactory at the back of the Tottenham Court-road. Several engines were speedily on the seene, but nearly a score were required ere any progress could be made in subset duing the flames, which had taken a firm hold of the premises, and rapidly. spread to the adjoining stables of the seen of the large clothing establishing ment known as "Capital and Labour," in Tottenham Court-road, between the diddland Eailway Company's branch od eept and Lockhart's coffee rooms. The bross in Messrs. Maple's stables, were rescued. Several of the employes, had retired to rest in the clothing warehouse, and were brought into the street by means of the "sack," one or two having very narrow escapes. The upper floors of the "Capital and Labour" premises were nearly burnt out. The excitement in London street, Mitford-place, and Tottenham Court-roat, was intense, and the traffic, hore especially between 11 and midnicht, when people were going homewards from the theatres, was greatly disterrupted.

BERMONDSEY MANNERS.
Some lively scenes have taken place
t the Bermondsey Vestry. The eneral Purposes Committee reporte there was a body of police to prevent disturbance. There were strong expressions of indigna ion at such a day being chosen, which added the bitterness of cold and starvation to the unfortunate circumstances. There were about 130 men, women, and childgen altogether, and late at night a large number were still in the streets.

DISCOVERY OF FOUR SKELETONS

A singular discovery has just been made by workmen engaged in restoring a large house at Bonneuil-en-France, as amali village in the department of the Saine-et-Oise. While engaged in excaving at the back of the house they came across what appeared to be an ancient cesspool, measuring about two yards in diameter, and about four yards deep, at the bottom of which were four skeletons, which proved, upon examination, to be those of man, a woman a child, and a dog. In the same place were also what appeared to be the remains of a feast, bottles, vases, pitchers, and pieces of glass. The male skeleton is believed to be that of a man about 40 years of age, while the child is said to have been about 4. The different objects found seem to belong to the time of Henry IIV. The cure of the village gives the following as a probable explanation:—During the wars of rieigion, in the regions of Henry III. and Henry IV one of the Dukes of Bonneuil-en-France, on his return home after a long campaign, surprised his wife and her paramour in the act of feasting together. Carried away by rage he had both the man and the woman, logether with the child as a decay and the paramour in the act of feasting together. EXTRAORDINARY CASE.

The commencement of the fact communication of the charges, Mr. Curtis Bennett the receipt of a communication dome Office, of which the following "Whitehall Cartinal Cartin charged before you upon their own confession with the same crime, namely, stealing three clocks from the house, No. 274. Corn wall-read. Notting Hill, and a third man, named Hunt, was also charged, some of the stolen property having been traced to him I have now to inform you that the Treasury solicitor has made exhaustive inquiry into the circumstances of the case. The result is so clearly to establish the innocence of Simpson and Hodges, that the Secretary of State thought it unnecessary to wait for the verdict of a jury against Pitcher, Hinton, and Hunt. Accordingly, on the just inst., Mr. Secretary Matthews directed the togate line was proceeding along the Rue du for the verdict of a jury against Pitcher, Hinton, and Hunt. Accordingly, on the just inst., Mr. Secretary Matthews directed the concluded to see what was the matter, was seized the horses heads. The driver who descended to see what was the matter, was developed in the several wounded and left dead, and the conductor of Wormwood Scrubbs forthwith to discharge Simpson and Hodges from his custody.—I am, sir, your obedient servant.
